Iowa State University

Dairy Farm

Online Heifer Sale

March 22 - March 29, 2022

CowBuyer.com

Welcome to the first, annual Cardinal and Gold Classic!

Since

1858, Iowa State University has been a model for farming in the heart of the nation. Dedicated to agriculture, the first barns for dairy were constructed in the location now known as the Agronomy Building through 1907 and at one point housed all six major breeds of dairy cattle. Now in 2022, the Iowa State University Dairy Farm stands on 27 acres three miles south of Campus where it has been for the last 15 years.

This

December, the Iowa State University Dairy Farm approached the Dairy Science Club at Iowa State University to partner with them for an educational opportunity. In an effort to reevaluate inventory, heifers were planning to be sold at the farm providing the perfect learning platform. The Dairy Science Club at Iowa State University now serves as the marketing and public relations outreach for the Iowa State University Dairy Farm's first ever sale. As one of the few universities left in the nation with a Dairy Science major, the skills and knowledge gained from putting on a sale are invaluable to students entering the dairy industry.

With

nationally-competitive teams in Dairy Judging and Dairy Challenge, countless activities through the Dairy Science Club, the new DairyCy Student-Managed Dairy, and the addition of the first ever Cardinal & Gold Classic, Iowa State students are engaged in the dairy industry from the start. Thank you to professors, farm and university staff, clubs, industry members, stakeholders, friends, and family for all of your unwavering support.

Sincerely,

Brianna, Irene, & Madi

Dr. Victor Cabrera

"Decision Support Tools to Improving Dairy Farm Profitability and Sustainability"

Dr. Victor E. Cabrera is a professor and extension specialist in dairy management at the University of Wisconsin-Madison Dairy Science Department. Dr. Cabrera combines applied research, interdisciplinary approaches, and participatory methods to deliver practical, user-friendly, and scholarly decision support tools for dairy farm management. These scientific tools are aimed to improve dairy farm profitability, environmental stewardship, and long-term sustainability of the dairy farm industry. During his career, Dr. Cabrera has developed more than 40 decision support tools, published 80 refereed articles, 10 book chapters, presented in more than 100 scientific sessions, and given talks in more than 400 extension meetings in Wisconsin, other states, and several other countries.

Dr. James Koltes

"At the Intersection of Precision Technologies and Genetics: How Sensors May Help Improve Feed Efficiency in Dairy Cattle"

Dr. James Koltes is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Animal Science within the Animal Breeding and Genetics group at Iowa State University. Dr. Koltes received his BS in Dairy Science and Genetics from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and PhD from Iowa State University in Genetics. His research focuses on the use of new tools such as sensors and biomarkers in the genetic improvement of feed efficiency and health in dairy cattle. Dr. Koltes also serves as the co-coordinator for the NRSP8 USDA multistate Bioinformatics program which oversees tools development, data sharing, database development and training programs for livestock genomics researchers in the United States.

Thank you immensely to all of the members of the Dairy Science Club at Iowa State University that dedicated their time to marketing and making the Cardinal & Gold Classic a success! We appreciate your sincere excitement, unwavering support, and pure dedication. Your time to help picture heifers, advertise the event, and plan for coming years is greatly appreciated! We are thankful for this dairy family.

Meet The Tri-Chairs

Irene Nielsen is a freshman studying Dairy Science at Iowa State University. She is from Mason, Michigan, and has grown up raising and showing registered Holsteins. She hopes to work in the dairy industry within the nutrition field.

Madi Palmer is a freshman at Iowa State University studying Animal Science with minors in General Business and Spanish. Upon graduation, she plans to return to her family's dairy farm in Northeast Iowa and continue the legacy as the fourth generation or go into the industry to work in genetics.

Brianna McBride is a senior from Severance, Colorado double majoring in Dairy Science and Food Science at Iowa State University. She grew up raising and showing her own small herd of Milking Shorthorns and Holsteins and strives to someday own her own dairy with on-site processing.

Thank you to the Iowa State Dairy Farm and the Dairy Science Club at Iowa State University for supporting this new event, providing learning opportunities, & developing experiences for students.
