Welcome to the complete dispersal of the West Winds Angus herd, the decision we have taken to withdraw from four decades of building this beef operation, truly a labor of love, has been a bittersweet decision and certainly not one that came easily or without deep soul search questions.

I can reflect on the beginnings with the purchase of three bred cows from Mr. Conrad Grove, Devereaux-Soleil Farm and his scholarly advice in establishing our small herd. Four open heifers were selected from the Genetics Unlimited herd with the helpful advice of Mr. Greg Krueger; Greg also provided assistance with the purchase of our first donor cow (Garney Burgess 9143) from GH2 Associates and Dr. Jim Evans performed several flushes to help us rapidly expand the West Winds herd into a competitive arena. Both Connie and Greg were excellent mentors and always freely shared their knowledge and experience to help us improve this herd. During the mid-90s, two bred heifers were obtained from Wehrmann Angus to further diversify and bolster our genetics. Subsequently, the cow herd has been a closed herd for almost three decades with new genetics coming only from sires from ABS, Select Sires, Penn State, Weaverland Valley, Cash Family Angus and Quaker Hill. Greg's sage advice was, "Les, remember what your product is; we sell beef," suggesting that there can be a lot of hype and fluff in this industry but that doesn't add value to the bottom line!

We enjoyed about a decade of showing activities with the assistance of Ken Walker, Jennifer Dunleavy and family members. We participated in the Atlantic National, KILE, West Virginia State Fair, All-American Futurity and even enrolled bulls to the Midland Bull Test and PA Bull Test. We had our successes but in my opinion these activities added considerable cost, so for several decades now our focus has been to raise our product – Angus beef! This activity has been bolstered by three selection criteria, firstly – animal confirmation, secondly – temperament and thirdly – performance as monitored by fertility, weaning weight and yearling weights (and in the past few years, genetic enhanced EPDs). This has worked well for us and for the past two decades these selection criteria have producing numerous returning feeder calf buyers and freezer beef customers.

It genuinely has been a labor of love for us, but with this dispersal we are offering great opportunities to new caretakers that also enjoy the Angus Business, we wish you all the best with your selections.

Plan now to be on hand for the historic dispersal of Les Schwartz's West Winds Angus herd and equipment set for Saturday, June 4, 2022. The West Winds herd was established nearly 40 years ago in 1984 and has continued ever since. The current West Winds herd are from the following families derived from the corresponding foundation females: 1. Blackbird, stemming from a foundation cow bred by Joel Stivers. 2. Blackcap, stemming from the famous Jorgensen cow Rito 707 of Ideal 712 70 who is best known as the dam of Emulous Extra of Ideal, Bard of Ideal 087, Rito 8221 of Ideal 087 36 (Big Moose), Shorito, Shorito 1A4 of 087 Shoshone and Extra 2227 of Ideal 087. 3. Duchess, stemming from HF Duchess 451 who reigned as Grand Champion of the National Junior Angus Show and the Eastern Regional Junior Show as well as Reserve Grand Champion of the All-American and was Spring Heifer Calf Champion of the National Western. 4. Idessa, stemming from a female purchased at Genetics Unlimited. 5. Miss Burgess, stemming from the donor cow Garney Burgess 9143. 6. Miss Wix, stemming from a foundation female selected from Conrad Grove. 7. Queen Mother, stemming from foundation females bred in the Genetics Unlimited and Devereux Soil Farm herds. 8. Scaara, stemming from the Triple Crown Winner Kruegers Scaara of Sayre who reigned as Grand Champion of the All-American, North American International and National Western. Foundation females were purchased from the reputation herds of Conrad Grove, Greg Krueger, Joe Calderazzo and Wehrmann Angus, while herd sires were selected from Pennsylvania State University, Weaverland Angus and Cash Angus. Artificial insemination is also been incorporated over the decades.

It is a pleasure and privilege to assist Les Schwartz with this important event. Please don't hesitate to call on us at American Angus Hall of Fame if we can be of assistance in any way.

Sincerely,

Tom Burke

West Winds Navigates Prevailing Path to Tasty Beef

Les Schwartz, owner of West Winds Farm

KIMBERTON, Pa. — West Winds Land and Cattle Co. is named for a confluence of western influences — the winds flow across the farm from the west, the farm was historically owned by the West family, and the farm's current owners moved to Pennsylvania from California in the 1980s. Farm owner Lester Schwartz said West Winds ties together the farm's multifaceted legacy. The farm has 55 acres and is home to a registered Angus herd. Right now, the herd has 44 cows and 10 replacement heifers.

Schwartz markets his calves for their genetics and feeds others for his freezer beef business. "I have about 20 families that have been returning for decades," he said, noting that he sends his cattle to Smucker's Meats in Mount Joy for processing. The herd spends the spring, summer and fall munching on grasses, mostly orchardgrass with some clover. In the winter months, Schwartz pulls the herd off the pasture and feeds them stockpiled hay and corn silage. He finishes his slaughter cattle with grain and corn silage. Schwartz grows all his own hay, renting an additional 80 acres for forage. He purchases corn and silage from C.E. Sauder & Sons' feed mill. The pastures are rotationally grazed.

He says he grew up on a Shorthorn farm in Wisconsin and worked as a veterinarian at the University of California before going to work for a pharmaceutical company in Pennsylvania. "I always enjoyed animals and we got our first animals in 1984 and we have been raising them ever since," he said. Schwartz said Angus made sense when he started the farm because of the easy access to registered cattle. "There were a lot of Angus, and I thought why should I buck the trend?" he said. Profitability is a challenge. "I try to break even or make a little profit," he said.

Keeping good customers by treating them well and keeping up with genetic advancements are two areas Schwartz focuses on to bolster the farm's profitability. He has scales to measure his calves' rate of gain and monitors the production of his cows and heifers. Schwartz breeds most of his cows and heifers by artificial insemination, using a bull to breed the stragglers. He said he looks carefully at the genomic records to mate the best bulls with his cattle. He also tests his heifers' genetics to make the best matings. "To me, that is the way of the future. We have to get animals to perform on what they have available to eat," he said. "You can tell the quality of the calves from the AI bulls." He said he will cull an ill-tempered cow and looks at the disposition scores on bulls. The temperament of his herd has improved by not allowing difficult animals to remain.

Calving season started in April. Schwartz said he prefers to have his cows calve on pasture instead of in the winter. Calving season will continue for a few months to stagger out the ages of the calves to furnish a year-round supply of beef for his customers. Schwartz said he waits until his bull calves are 7 or 8 months old before deciding which he will keep and which will become steers for the beef market. Some might find the decision unusual, but he said he likes to get a better look at their conformation before making a final decision.

Custom butchers are in high demand, Schwartz said, noting that he received a letter from Smucker's saying the shop was booked solid for 2017. "Everyone wants locally grown, hormone-free, and I can supply that, but getting a butcher is a challenge," he said, adding that Smucker's does a great job. Schwartz said he likes to see his beef aged for 21 days, which requires tying up cooler space at the butcher to finish out the processing. He charges his customers on a per weight basis for a mix of beef cuts. Customers can purchase a quarter up to the full animal. He said the families he sells to can select from a standard set of cuts to finish the processing. "It turns out to be hamburger and steaks, and a few roasts," he said. Grass-fed beef is becoming a popular choice among younger buyers. Schwartz uses pastures but finishes with grain because he believes it makes a better-tasting product.

He said he enjoys the benefits he's received from beef farming, both while he was pursuing a career and now in retirement. "It's mentally relaxing if you have a desk job," Schwartz said. Now, it's a daily exercise program. "I find it very enjoyable to get out here and forget about the job," he said. "Then, it was a mental thing. Today, it's a physical thing."
